

James Kenneth Taylor (1865 – 1941)

Janelle's Great Grandparents: James Kenneth Taylor and Emma Jane Hengst

James Kenneth Taylor was born October 1st 1865 to Henry F. Taylor and Anna Y. Keeney in the Shrewsbury area of York County, Pennsylvania. ¹ James was baptized January 3rd 1892 by Rev J.R. Jones of Innersville (known today as Spry), York County.

James was the youngest of six children, 5' 10" tall with blue eyes, and brown hair. ² He lived with his family in the Shrewsbury area where he learned about farming on his father's farm. James attended the local district schools common to the rural localities where he earned his preliminary education. His public-school work was supplemented by three terms in the Normal Department of York County Academy in York. There he studied to be a teacher, and in 1883, at just 18 years old, he became an instructor in one of the district schools in York Township.

After three years of teaching James decided to learn the printing trade, and began apprenticing with various printers within York Township, and the city of York. It was during this period James married Emma Jane Hengst on July 13th 1886 by Rev. Niles. ³ They applied for the marriage license on July 10th 1886. ⁴

Emma was born May 10th 1867 to John Hengst ⁵ and Fianna Knaub ⁶ in Jacobus York County Pennsylvania. ⁷ Emma was baptized June 5th 1867 by Rev J. Smith of Paradise York County Pennsylvania. ⁸

Soon after their marriage James and Emma lived in Dallastown, where he became interested in starting his own printing business. There he began a small printing business. Then in October 1891 James began to raise money by selling his horse, buggy, and harness for $30.00.

In his zeal to raise money, James approached Henry Wallick of Red Lion to have him cash a check for $19.00. However, when Mr. Wallick presented the check to the Drivers and Mechanics Bank in York, the bank found that James had no money in his accounts. In fact, it turned out that James forged a number of checks amounting to $1000.00, and had accumulated another $2000.00 in debts with various other business. To make matters worse James even frauded his own mother, Anna, and a number of other people and business.

When it was all over, the Sheriff levied Jame's printing office in Dallastown, and judgements were awarded to his mother for $1050.00, and J. R. Davis for $311.63. The other people and business that were involved with James's fraud included: Charles Strine, a Paradise school teacher for $600.00, Albert Stiles, also from Paradise for $75.00, and Mr. Pius Opus, a prominent cigar manufacture and merchant of Jacobus for $600.00. ⁹

During all this time James disappeared from Dallastown, and there were reports he left for Chicago. After a few months of searching, detectives, Conley and Stil, located him in York, and charged him with forgery. ¹⁰

James and Emma were devoted members of the United Evangelical Church, and around 1898, as a mark of appreciation, the church ordained James as a preacher, and he frequently occupies the pulpit.

Then about 1900 James started the Taylor Calendar Company to take care of the wholesale part of the calendar business, and it has already assumed great proportions. The two concerns are rated in both Bradstreet's and Dun's mercantile books.

- According to a 1902 biographical sketch in Volume II of the History of York, James began operations upon a modest scale on February 11th 1892 in Dallastown. It was then ...” he purchased six small fonts of type, and a small Dorman hand press, capable of printing a form five by seven and one-half inches, and with this little equipment initiated the business which has now grown to be one of considerable scope, as the result of his energy and able management...”

By 1902 James had owned and operated a number of printing business at his home and in Jacobus: the Yoe Printing Company, the Taylor Calendar Company, and the Jacobus Printing Company. His specialty from the inception of the business was mercantile work, and his motto was. "If it's made of paper, we have it." He was his own salesman, and deliveryman by day travelling from town to town, a journeyman printer by night, and bookkeeper at intervals. His business would later go into receivership.

Soon after, James created the Specialty Printing Company, when in 1912 James began, once again, to fraud people out of money. In July 1911 James was issued an arrest warrant for obtaining $13,000 by false pretense, and prior to the warrant his plant was destroyed by fire, entailing a loss estimated at $10,000. ¹¹⁻¹² My thoughts...he burnt his place down to get the money to cover his $13,000.00.

The family was living at 1008 South Pine Street in York. James was 47 years old, and self employed as a printer. When on April 22nd 1913 he was arrested, charged for larceny by employee – embezzlement under false pretenses. James was sentenced to serve a minimum of one year and six months, and a maximum of three years, in the Eastern State Penitentiary, as Prisoner Number: B6594. ¹³

By 1920 the family lived at 705 Chestnut Street in the city of York, which he owned, and was working for the Daily Press, and by 1930 he worked for a printing shop with his son Kenneth.

Emma was at 76 years, 8 months, and 26 days on August 14th 1934 when she died in York, York County Pennsylvania. She was laid to rest with her husband in the Yoe Union Cemetery (6C 10), Yoe Borough, York Township, York County Pennsylvania. The information on her death certificate was provided by her husband, James K. Taylor. ¹⁴ FAG#: 126006447 ⁱ

By 1940 James was living on the 2nd floor of Lucinda Emig's home at 993 Center Street in York. He was married to 54-year-old Margaret, who in 1935 had lived in Fredrick County, Maryland. Margaret was born in Virginia about 1886. There was no other information on Margaret, other than they were identified as being married.

James was 76 years old when he died January 1st 1941 in York, York County Pennsylvania. The information on James's death certificate was made by his son, Harold Taylor. ¹⁵ James was laid to rest in the Yoe Cemetery (6C 10), Yoe Borough, York Township, York County Pennsylvania. FAG#: 126006081 ⁱⁱ

All of the James and Emma Taylor children's names, spelling, birth and baptized dates were obtained from the James and Emma Taylor Family Bible. ¹⁶ In 1920 Edna, Hellen, and Austin were the only children that were not living with the family.
